

Experience the world of Māori rock art

A deeply enriching and authentic journey of discovery into a living culture, where the traditions of the past meet the people of today. Our whakapapa (genealogy) binds us to the land and to our ancestors. Rock art is a cherished part of our identity, a treasure to be preserved for generations to come.

OUR LIVING CULTURE

GUIDED CENTRE & ROCK ART SITE TOUR*

Your tour begins at Te Ana Māori Rock Art Centre, where Ngāi Tahu guides share stories of their ancestors and the rich tribal culture, past and present. The Centre holds the most significant collection of Māori rock drawings in the world and is an entranceway into the world of Ngāi Tahu, the Māori tribe of Te Waipounamu (the South Island) of New Zealand.

Continue your journey to the tribally owned iconic rock art sites at Ōpihi. You will discover Māori rock art where it was created and gain a deeper understanding of our ancestors and why their artworks are such a cherished part of Ngāi Tahu identity today.
